ASSAULTED WITH A BUTCHER KNIFE

After Which the Body is Dragged to a House Boat and Thrown to the Deck-Women Were Concerned in the Quarrel-"I've Finished Him," the Self-convicting Words of the Man Who Did the Deed.

What to two horrified spectators looded very much like cold-blooded murder happened up the river two miles below Brilliant, on the West Virginia side, Saturday afternoon.

Two young men, who live at Brilliant, Ernest Young, a seventeen-yearold boy, and Charles Hoover, a young man of about twenty-five years, were out skill riding on the Ohio, below that place. At a point two miles below Brilplace. At a point two miles books shifted linn, along the shore by Riddle's farm, they noted two house-boats of the type so familiar along the Ohio. Their attention was attracted to these boats because they were securely lashed together. One was a white painted boat and looked to be above the usual run of the west. The culor was smaller, and gether. One was a white painted sons and looked to be above the usual run of such craft. The other was smaller, and was painted brown. While the two young men were floating silently by, two or three hundred yards away, a commotion was heard in the larger of the boats; men's and women's voices were raised in angry outery, and what was thought to be blows were heard. The noise suddenly stopped, when a young man opened the door at the bow of the house boat and jumped into the water next to the shore, where it was only about two feet deep, and made the best of his way up the bank into the willows. He had hardly reached the bank when two women and another man emerged from the cabin. The man had a luge butcher knife in his hand and brandished it in the direction of the fleeing man. Stopping only to say something to the women the fallow also jumped into the water after the one who had disaponly to say something to the women the fellow also jumped into the water and made after the one who had disap-peared in the willows up the bank. The two women seemed to have different opinions about the quarrel, for one yelled after the man: "Catch him; kill the -

The other woman, who appeared to be quite young, on the contrary cried out:
"Let the poor fellow alone; don't

The man seemingly paid no attention The man seemingly paid no attention to the remarks, ran up the bank and also disappeared among the trees.

The two young men who had been witnesses of this scene remained to see the culture. Stream to say the course witnesses of this scene remained to see the outcome. Strange to say, the occu-pants of the boat did not seem to notice these witnesses of what seemed to be an impending murder. From their ac-tions it is thought the entire party were considerably under the influence of licens. of liquor.

In a few minutes the man who went after the other, was seen coming down the bank again with the butcher knife in his hand. On arriving at the water side he yelled out to the women: - this well, I've finished the -

The whole crowd then entered the cabin of the boat. In a few minutes two men who had not before been seen came out and went up the bank, having been told to find out what the man with the butcher knife had done to the ing been told to find out what the man with the butcher knife had done to the young fellow he went after. In a short time these two appeared coming down the bank with the body of the man between them, half dragging and half carrying it. The man was utterly without motion, and was either dead or unconscious. The two drunken brutes dragged the body through the shallow water and threw it down on the forward part of the smaller boat, after which the whole gang again retired inside. They evidently had enough clear-headednoss left to at least partially realize what they had done, as it was only a fow minutes until the two men came out and untied the two lashed boats and started them down the river. Hoover and Young naturally did not care to approach such a gang of thugs, and pulled up the river to their homes, when they related the story of the crime that had been committed. The story became generally known about crime that had been committed. The story became generally known about Wellsburg yestorday, but no steps were taken to follow up the probable murderers. People visited the scene of the trouble, but no signs were discovered to indicate what had occurred in the willows. Possibly the exact spot was not discovered.

The two house boats went on down the river and their whereabouts were unknown until two were discovered by an INTELLIGENCER reporter, tied up at the bank at Martin's Ferry, above the the bank at Martin's Ferry, above the Buckeye glass works, yesterday, that resembled the ones wanted. They arrived there yesterday afternoon. An effort was made to discover whether there were any signs to indicate that a wounded man was aboard, but no Martin's Ferry physicians, so far as could be learned, had been called down to the boats, and the occupants themselves kept very quiet last evening. Two other boats that resembled the two in question passed Martin's Ferry yesterday afternoon without stopping. One was a large white painted one and the other a brown one. These may be the boats whose occupants will be wanted by the authorities.

The Wheeling police were yesterday afternoon informed of the supposed niternoon informed of the supposed murder, and later that the boats were supposed to be at Martin's Ferry, and this morning, probably, an investiga-tion will be made, either by Wheeling

The two boys who saw the affair from a skiff a few yards away were sure that the man who was dragged down to the boat was dead. The only solution is that the butcher knife carried by his pursuer was the instrument that was used to "finish him," as was expressed by the fellow at the time.

Loss of Sleep Makes people nervous and irritable and occasions a great deal of complaint on their part, but why should anybody complain about losing sleep last night on account of that hacking cough when Cubeb Cough Cure will relieve it in six-Ty SECONDS. It is not a cure for con-sumption but affords relief and will prevent it. Sold by Alex. T. Young, John Klari, Wheeling, and Bowie & Co., Bridgeport, Ohio.

HE CRACKED HIS SKULL

Jerry Westlake, of Elm Grove, Badly Hurt Yesterday. Yesterday afternoon Jerry Westlake, of Elm Grove, and a friend went down to Benwood on an electric car, intending to get off at the Riverside works. The car was going at a pretty lively speed when it passed there, but Westspeed when it passed there, but West-lake jumped off. He was thrown with great violence against a pole beside the track, his forehead striking it first. He spun around with the force of the blow like a top, and then fell. When his friends went to pick him up he struck at them wildly, evidently being crazed by the concussion. He was taken to the house of B. F. Roberts, near by, and Dr. Ford dressed his wounds. His and Dr. Ford dressed his wounds. and Dr. Ford dressed his would his in-frontal bone was fractured, and his in-juries were pronounced extremely se-rious, and may prove fatal. He was brought up to the city building and from thore taken to his home at Elm Grove on the 5 p. m. motor train.

Sunday Base Ball.

Yesterday afternoon on the upper Ben-wood grounds the House & Hormann and Beliaire Globe base ball teams met. The game was remarkably for the freeness with which the two pitchers were thumped. In the aggregate over half a hundred base hits were made. Errors made a great struggle to outnumber the hits, while runs and stolen bases put up a pretty fight for second honors. The battery for House & Herrman was Atwell and Blake and for the Bellaire boys, Leech and Glassoe. The score: House & Herrman 9 6 6 4 0 5—30 Bellaire Globes..... 5 0 1 2 5 2—15

"After the Ball" To-night.

This evening R. E. Graham and his new comedy, "Atter the Ball," will be seen at the Wheeling Opera House. He is an old Wheeling favorite and will doubtless have a large audience. The play is an adaptation from the French, by Y. W. Herbert, and its origin is quite evident in some scenes that the French term "risque." Seats are on sale at C. A. House's.

A committee of winers waited on the union. mittee of miners waited on the union, but was not heard. It was stated after the meeting that no action had been finally taken.

A Muster of His Art.

The Louisville Commercial of February 7, 1893, pays the following flattering tribute to Powell, the magician, who appears at the Opera House December 10 and 11:

"A large audience witnessed at the Masonic Temple theatre last evening one of the cleverest performances that has been seen in this city for many a long day. Powell is as entertaining and as skillful as Herman. Comparison is as skillful as Herman. Comparison is out of the question, for the performance given by Powell is so complete, so mystifying, so novel and so entertaining that one leaves the house altogether pleased and unmindful whether there be any other magician in existence. Powell does his feats with a readiness, a skill, a confidence and a rapidity that write admiration quite spart from his excite admiration quite apart from his

"The Burgiar."

This fine drama will be seen at the Opera House to-morrow evening. In it the spectator is led through a series of home pictures to the sensation of a repulsive burglar discovered redhanded in his nefacious calling by a child scarce seven years of age, who, unusual to re-late, instead of being scared out of her wits at the intruder, is more alarmed that her loved ones, father and mother, shall be disturbed or bodily injured by coming in contact with the midnight wanderer. The child in her, preceduals wanderer. The carrier has been dear for others is willing to aid the burglar in his selections of plunder, and an interview between the two has no counterpart in the annals of theatrical lore. It must be seen to be appreciated.
